MOSTLY MUSIC AT CHAUTAUQUA

Attendance Does Not Fall off During Wet Weather. Cartoonist and Philadelphia Concert Company, Entertain Large Audience.

On account of the wet weather, the Chautauqua might be supposed to receive severe bump. This however was not the case, people who go to the Chautauqua can't find time to complain about the weather.

During the afternoon session S. M. Spedon, of New York, the clever cartoonist and chalk talker, delightfully entertained a large enthusiastic assembly. Mr. Spedon drew pictures of many faces in the audience and his efforts to please, were accepted in the humorous manner they were intended. In portraying faces of men who are constantly before the public as national characters, the cartoonist displayed exceptional skill in manipulating the chalk, bringing about changes of expression and varying lines in countenance, effected by different mental temperament.

HON. RICHMOND P. HOBSON
At Chautauqua today.

The humorous part of the program was followed by several musical selections. Miss Lotta Cotterall, S. Cardoso Silva, and Miss Bartholomay, as accompanist, participating.

At the evening session the audience was given a musical treat. A band concert was the opening feature, lasting until 8 o'clock, followed by Mr. Spedon for 30 minutes of laughter. The weather conditions were by this time entirely forgotten and the assembly of nearly 700 people awaited with fond anticipation the introduction of the Philadelphia Concert Company.

This company of artists appearing in personnel are: Theodore Burkart, basso-cantabile; Horace Clement, Jr., tenor; Lotta Cotterall, mezzo-soprano; Caroline E. Schrenk, dramatic soprano. From the opening number until the close, each selection was met with effective applause, bringing out generous encores. Discretion does not permit individual criticism of the work of these musical artists. They are a company made up of high class musicians, ranging from the sweet modulating tones of dramatic soprano, down through the scores of tenor and mezzo-contralto to the rich, harmonious resonance of the base. The "Sextette from Lucia" by the quartette, accompanied by Miss Bartholomay, closed the program. This company will remain for the closing of the Chautauqua and will afford people an opportunity to hear grand opera selections rendered by grand opera singers.

At the meeting of Chautauqua directors, Friday, it was decided to establish a Gettysburg Chautauqua Summer School, to be under the direction of the Chautauqua directors with Dr. T. C. Billheimer, as Dean. The School will have a Normal and Academic Department. Dr. William A. Granville will have charge of the academic branches and Prof. C. F. Sanders will be principal of the normal branches. Under the proposed curriculum, students can take up courses in study for teachers or advance work for credits in higher schools and universities. Music will be introduced as a separate department, offering courses in vocal, piano and stringed instruments. Other branches will be taken up such as domestic science, art, Bible study, elocution and American history, specializing on history of Gettysburg. All departments will be under competent instructors and it will be the object of the directors to procure the best talent obtainable for each branch of work offered to students. The next term will begin June 18th, 1912, closing with the Chautauqua Assembly in July.

The program for this evening and Sunday follows:

SATURDAY EVENING
7:30 p. m.—Free Concert, Gettysburg Band.

8:00 p. m.—Musical Prelude.

8:15 p. m.—Lecture: Uncrowned Kings, Dr. W. T. S. Culp.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 27
9:30 a. m.—Union Sunday School conducted by Rev. Prof. C. F. Sanders.

TWO W. M. ENGINES BADLY WRECKED

Remarkable Wreck at Highfield. One Engine Completely Overturned. Other Rolls Into Ditch. No One Seriously Hurt.

Western Maryland engines 630 and 617 of the large freight type, were derailed at the east end of the passenger track at Highfield Friday and both were badly wrecked. Both engines were running light.

Fireman G. E. Fauth, of engine 630, was buried under the engine and was missing for some time before he was discovered under the tender. His right eye, cheek and face were burned. When taken out from under the wreck he refused medical treatment.

The first engine when it left the rails, turned completely over and the second engine rolled down into a ditch. A heavy fog prevailed at the time and the crews were on the passing track until they had gone over the switch. The passing switch leads from the main track into a siding, and it was at this point that the accident occurred.

The crews of both engines were thrown from their cabs, as the accident happened so suddenly that none of the men had time to jump. Their escape from death, or being seriously injured, was little short of a miracle.

The engineers were Messrs. Martz and Williams and the firemen Messrs. Rothenstein and Fauth. The latter was the only man injured. The railroad officials consider this one of the most remarkable wrecks in the history of the road from the fact that under the circumstances no one was seriously injured or killed.

Both engines are buried in mud. The embankment over which they fell is ten feet high. It is thought by some railroad men that one of the engines turned over twice. The track was only slightly damaged. Wrecking crews from Hagerstown and Union Bridge were dispatched to the scene and it will be some time before the derailed engines can be gotten on the rails and taken to the shops.

Passenger traffic was not interfered by the wreck. Another small wreck occurred on the Western Maryland Railroad at Finksburg Station Thursday night. Three cars attached to a freight train were derailed causing a delay of about two hours. The passengers on the Blue Mountain Express were transferred and brought to Hagerstown by way of Gettysburg.

SATURDAY'S MARKET

Saturday's market opened with 35 stalls filled to overflowing with choice fruits and vegetables. Many wagons were quickly surrounded and the stock of goods disposed of early. Cantaloupes were in abundance selling from 4 to 10c. One man sold 22 bushels of cantaloupes before 8 o'clock. Country water melons did not last long and the market as a whole was extraordinary. Corn sold at 12 cents per dozen; peaches $2.00 to $2.50 per bushel for select fruit; apples from 10c to 20c per peck; tomatoes 10c to 15c per peck; chicken, old, 12c per pound; young, 15c per pound; eggs 19c per dozen; butter 20c to 24c per pound; huckleberries, the last of the season were sold for 8 cents per quart.

CELEBRATED SILVER WEDDING

On Thursday, Rev. C. W. Baker and wife, of New Oxford, celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage by giving a dinner. Those present were, Rev. Baker, wife and children, Charles Mary and Ralph; Rev. Peter Livingston and wife, of York; Mrs. Elizabeth Wolf, Abbottstown; Mrs. T. J. Barkley, Mrs. T. J. Stahle, and daughter, Miss Louise, Mrs. James E. Weygant and daughter, Ruth, of Gettysburg; Miss Agnes Eshelhart and Miss Maria Kehm, of New Oxford. The afternoon was spent in social chat and music. A photograph of the party was taken.

NEW PRESIDENT FOR WILSON COLLEGE

Miss Anna J. McKaig was on Tuesday elected president of Wilson College, Chambersburg, by the directors of the institution. Miss McKaig is the first woman president the college has had. She is not unknown to Wilson alumni. For a number of years she was dean of the college but resigned that position about ten years ago and went to Wellesley as head of the department of education. She is said to be a woman of exceptional strength as an educator and ability as an executive. It is not definitely known whether or not she will accept the post.

MRS. STONESIFER ARRESTED TOO

Middle Street Trouble Goes Merry. On. Roy Plank Held For Court. Mrs. Stonesifer's Witnesses Say She Did Not Cuss.

Roy Plank was held for Court at the hearing given him before Squire Harnish yesterday afternoon. Testimony of the prosecution, supported by witnesses, in the persons of Edith Nagel and Norah Staley, revealed the following edifying information.

Several boisterous children were teasing a cat, ordinary household-garden variety, in front of Mr. Plank's house and the conduct of the youngsters became annoying. Both Mr. Plank and said cat annoyed at this point. Here, it is alleged, Mr. Plank appears at a window and tells the children to go away or he would shoot them. Mrs. Stonesifer hears the threat. Challenges Mr. Plank with the remark that he "wouldn't shoot anybody." Mr. Plank replies, "I'll shoot the whole kerblunkety blank outfit." Later, fires off a gun from the second story window. Result, none visible. Consequence, held for Court.

Act second. Mr. Plank immediately has warrant sworn out for arrest of Mrs. Stonesifer charging her with profanity. Chief Shaefer serves warrant. Hearing starts at eight o'clock Friday evening. In the information Mrs. Stonesifer is alleged to have used at least fifteen oaths and after testimony of the prosecution, counsel for the defense, J. Lawrence Williams, insists upon having the fifteen oaths repeated. Air became too blue for description, witness hesitates and refuses to continue. Mrs. Stonesifer testifies that she never uses "words of such large denomination." Her testimony is supported by the same witnesses used during the hearing in the afternoon, and the ably conducted case is dismissed by reason of "lack of sufficient evidence to convict defendant."

AUGUSTUS SHEELY

The second death due to an abscess of the jaw caused by a decayed tooth occurred in Harrisburg, Tuesday, August 22, when Augustus Sheely, aged 61 years, expired.

Mr. Sheely's illness caused by the tooth dates back to several months ago. His jaw became sore and swollen from the bad tooth and later infection developed.

The former part of July he went to the Harrisburg hospital, where he underwent an operation. On August 18 he submitted to the second operation. Following this operation blood poisoning developed and this caused his death.

Mr. Sheely is survived by one son, M. A. Sheely; one sister, Mrs. Sarah Lough, New Oxford; two brothers, Samuel and Amos, the latter living in the West. The deceased was a native of this county, and lived at Flatbush for a number of years. He was a member of Minnewaukaru Tribe No. 250, I. O. R. M., of Hanover.

Funeral Friday at 2 o'clock, Rev. Dr. J. A. Lyter, pastor of the Derry street United Brethren Church, officiated, and interment in the East Harrisburg cemetery.

MRS. MARY A. KETTOMAN

Mrs. Mary A. Kettoman, wife of John G. Kettoman, died at her home near the old Maria Furnace in Hamilton township, Friday morning at 9 o'clock of cancer of the liver and dropsy. Her age was 50 years, 6 months and 19 days.

Deceased was well thought of in the community in which she lived. She is survived by her husband and the following sons and daughters: John Kettoman, Mrs. Annie Hatteigh, Mrs. Catherine Carey and Mrs. Carrie Swisher, all of Greencastle; William G. Kettoman, of Hamilton township. Mrs. Mary Peary, Black's Gap, Franklin county; Misses Elizabeth and Nellie Kettoman and George and James Kettoman, at home. Funeral will be held Sunday with services at the house at 10 o'clock. Interment in Union Cemetery.

HARRY L. TAYLOR

Harry L. Taylor, died at his home in York, Friday at 2 p. m. of locomotor ataxia. He had been an invalid for the past ten years.

Mr. Taylor was formerly an Adams county man. He leaves his father and mother, his wife, one daughter, Louise; two sisters and three brothers. Interment in Evergreen cemetery, Sunday at 9 a. m.

POLICEMAN ARRESTS MOTHER

Chief of Police Klenzing, of Chambersburg, is made of heroic parts. He arrested his mother, Friday morning, on the charge of selling cigarettes to minors.

She was one of twenty five tobaccoists, druggists, grocers and cafe proprietors who were arrested on this charge and held under their own recognition for a hearing.

Much complaint had been made of boys smoking cigarettes on the streets. After consulting with District Attorney and the Burgess, Chief of Police Augustus Klenzing decided to make an investigation. When he had concluded his work he had the names of twenty five boys, ranging in age from 10 to 18 years, and as a result of their evidence information was made against business firms of Chambersburg, charging them with selling cigarettes to boys under 21 years old in violation of the act of assembly of 1903.

"The postmaster here was removed the other day for incivility to the patrons of the office," said the landlord of the tavern. "You see, Life Struder asked for his mail and none could be found, but the postmaster said he believed there had been a postcard, but what had become of it he'd be blamed if he knew. Life is a good deal of a crank and that didn't satisfy him, and they had some words, and the postmaster took a shot at Life that tore off half of one of his ears."

"Still, as the postmaster was able to remember just about what had been written on the postal card and told it to Life and then didn't shoot off enough of his ear to really affect the hearing it strikes me that the government was pretty considerable stringent, as you might say, about the matter."—Puck.

ATWOOD AT NEW YORK

Aviator Gets Big Ovation at End of St. Louis-New York Flight.

New York, Aug. 26.—With a flight of thirty miles from Nyack, on the west bank of the Hudson river, to Governor's Island, in upper New York bay, Harry N. Atwood completed the most spectacular cross-country flight in the history of aviation and spanned the great expanse of territory between St. Louis and the Atlantic seacoast, breaking the world's record by 105 miles.

Atwood's final jaunt showed how wonderful his control of his giant machine is.

Jumping into the air from the top of Hook mountain, where he was compelled to come to earth because of an accident to his engine, he turned his machine south when directly over the center of the Hudson and, maintaining an altitude between 100 and 200 feet, steered direct to Governor's Island.

At Aswood swept down the river in front of the city he was given a wonderful ovation. The docks and the tops of all of the skyscrapers in Manhattan were jammed with hysterical men and women, who cheered him to the echo, while every steam whistle on factory and harbor craft was let loose to bid him welcome.

When he reached the Battery he swung out toward the Jersey shore, then described three giant circles around old Castle William and settled down on the parade ground, which is the favorite of all aviators.

During the twelve days of his flight from St. Louis Atwood covered a distance of 1269 miles.

MOB BURNS WOMAN'S NEGRO ASSAILANT

Pays Fearful Penalty For Assault on Farmer's Wife.

Purcell, Okla., Aug. 26.—A trampled heap of charred wood and ashes in the center of the city and free and open discussion of the occurrence wherever two or three men gathered together are the reminders of the burning of a man by a mob of at least 2000 persons.

Men and women, all unmasked, took part in this putting to death a negro who had assaulted the wife of a white farmer and had afterward tried to burn the farmhouse to conceal his crime.

It seems doubtful that any official action will be taken by the sheriff of the county, inasmuch as he and his men made no effort to stop the work of the mob while the negro was burning.

The man who thus horribly paid for his crime was Peter Carrier, thirty-five years old, a negro cook on a dining car.

He entered the home of a famous named Spraguer, one mile south of this place, found Mrs. Spraguer, a young woman, there alone and assaulted her. He then fired the house and escaped, but nearly farmers saw the smoke from the house and saved Mrs. Spraguer, who was unconscious, from death by fire, although the building was destroyed.

BEATTIE'S STORY CONTRADICTED

One Witness Heard Woman's Scream on Night of Murder.

MAY REACH CLIMAX TODAY

Paul Beattie, Who Bought the Gun, and Beulah Binford, the "Woman in the Case," Who May Be Put on the Stand Some Time During the Day.

Chesterfield Courthouse, Va., Aug. 26.—The climax of the commonwealth's case against Henry C. Beattie, Jr., standing trial here for wife murder, will come when Paul Beattie, his cousin, will take the stand. The testimony of two days has been leading up to and preparing for this step. That given Friday was, in many particulars, sharply damaging against the young prisoner, and remained unshaken under fire of cross-examination. Beulah Binford may also be put on the stand some time during the day.

The attorneys for the prosecution will attempt to show through Paul Beattie's testimony that the gun which was found on the turnpike the day after Mrs. Beattie was murdered and which has hitherto remained unidentified before the court as to ownership was the same gun that Paul Beattie bought at a pawnshop at the instance of Henry C. Beattie and turned over to him.

Heard a Woman's Shriek Scream.

Most serious of the testimony against Beattie was that of one witness, who swore that at five minutes before 11 o'clock on the night of July 18 he heard a woman's shriek scream at the spot on the Midlothian turnpike, about 500 yards from his house, and that the stream was followed almost instantly by the report of a gun. Another witness testified to having seen a man much resembling Beattie standing by an automobile about twenty or thirty feet from the spot afterwards marked by a pool of blood.

The trend of the prosecution's case has been cumulative. The first thing that Judge Watson did at the opening of court in the morning was to rule against the motion made by the defense attacking the indictment on technical grounds.

George Jarrell, a Richmond detective, began the building up of a serious menace against the prisoner when he repeated the story Beattie had told him on the night of Mrs. Beattie's death as to the incidents of the hold-up on the road by a bearded highwayman. Jarrell said that Beattie had declared that the assailant had stood at the right of the machine when he leveled his gun and fired, and that the explosion came just as he, Beattie, had bent over to throw the clutch on his engine. The charge, which he had dodged by his quick movement to throw on the clutch, had struck his wife, according to the version repeated by Jarrell.

The story young Beattie told at the coroner's inquest and repeated by witnesses at this trial who heard it was that the assailant with the gun had appeared at the left side of the machine, and that Mrs. Beattie, who was sitting in the left hand seat, received the charge as the machine jumped forward. Mrs. Beattie was shot in the left cheek.

When W. W. Sydnor, a deputy sheriff who owns two bloodhounds, took the stand he told how he had hurried to the scene of the crime with his dogs early on the morning following the shooting, and how his dogs started at the dark stain of blood in the road and went straight to a stump a few yards off the road, circled it and returned again to the blood marks.

"Mandy Alexander, Mandy Alexander," Sheriff Gill next called.

Mandy, colored, was sitting out under the shade of the locust trees with her shoes off to ease the misery of her feet. She hurried into court with shoes only half on to tell how she, the first to discover it, had found the shogun lying between the rails of the rail road near 5 o'clock on the morning after the murder.

When Roland Sydnor was called and told of seeing an automobile at the spot where the murder was committed a few hours later, Attorney Wendenburg, the prosecutor, showed him the bloodstained coat that Beattie had worn on the night of the murder, and asked him if he could remember whether or not the man he had seen alone by the machine that afternoon had worn that coat. The witness said that he thought that was the same, though he could not be positive. But he fixed the identification upon Beattie more clearly when he swore that the bloodstained automobile which he saw at the inquest was the same that he had seen on the pike on the evening of July 18.

There was a stir in the courtroom when Squire W. A. Jacob, in answer to a question in cross-examination, said that he had seen a bloody gaudy let lying in the bottom of the car on the night of the murder. No mention had been made in the case of this piece of evidence. Prosecution and defense each accused the other of having hidden the gaudy, and when the court questioned attorneys on both sides it appeared that neither knew anything about its whereabouts.

How Pat Was Working When Eileen Arrived

A Labor Day Story

By NORA C. MCARTHY

"Pat," said Eileen when Pat started for America, "I hope you won't get mixed up in the labor troubles in that country. They say sometimes there's fightin', and O'm skeert ov yer gittin' kilt."

"Niver moind, sweetheart. O'll take good care o' meself ag'in yer comin' over to jine me and we'll be married and live in a nice little shanty and have a pig and a goat and live lolkie gintle folk."

"But they say, Pat, that in America they don't have pigs. Anyway, they don't keep 'em in the house. O've heard that the pigs is all kep' together and killed together—sometimes a nather of tin or a dozen at one kiltin'."

"That won't matter to us. We'll have one just to remind us of home. And we'll have the shanty O'm tellin' ye about wid the ladder goin' up to the second story."

"Och, Pat, they don't have ladders in America, they have stairs."

"Well, we'll have a ladder in our shanty just as we'll have the pig. And by that same token we'll have a coo for milk."

"But O'm told people don't keep coos of their own in that country. All the milk is put in a big tub and it's peddled out in wagons."

"But we'll have the coo for the same reason we'll have the pig and the ladder, to remind us of our beautiful island and the home one couldn't have in it, because we're too poor. But in America O'll git together the money for the shanty and the pig and the ladder and the coo, and we'll live like fightin' cocks."

So Pat folded the poor girl in his arms, the tears streaming down her cheeks at parting with him.

"What's the matter, darlin'?" he said, patting her fondly. "Don't be cryin'. It'll not be long before I send ye the money to come over to me, and be the toime ye git there O'll have the shanty ready, so ye'll think ye're right here in ould Ireland."

"Oh, Pat, O'm feared ye won't succeed!"

And so they parted, Pat with no more money in his pocket than to take him in the steamer across the ocean. The pair were too simple and uneducated to have formed any idea of America. Their dream of a home there was such as they might have at home had they the means to establish it, where the pig and the cow and themselves might all live together in domestic harmony.

Since Pat could not write, his letters from the new country, written by a friend, were of the simplest character. He realized that even if he could write his own letters he would never be able to convey to Eileen's simple mind the real America. He was too wise to attempt it. At first his letters began in the usual way with his class:

I take my pen in hand to write you a few lines to say that I'm in good health, thanks be to God, hoping that you are the same at the present time.

Then followed hopes that the crops would be abundant and that different members of the family were well. One poor speller who indited a letter for Pat wrote, "This letter comes hoppin' that you are well as I am, thanks be to God!"

"What's that?" said Eileen. "It comes hoppin'?" Of thacht it come by a ship?"

Pat remained several years in America before he sent for Eileen. When he got a start he wrote, "Darlin', O'm buidin' the shanty." When he made some money he wrote, "O've bought the pig." Then the cow followed, his shanty was ready and Pat was ready to send the passage money that was to bring his sweetheart to him in America.

Before starting Eileen wrote that she wished he could bring the shanty and the pig and the cow to Ireland, but she supposed that if he could he wouldn't be able to make the money necessary to keep up the establishment. So she made her preparation to join him.

Pat knew the day she sailed and the day the steamer was due in New York. He wrote her that she would arrive on a holiday they kept in America called Labor day. He would be busy on that day, and he would send his friend, Mike Fogarty, to the steamer to meet her and bring her to where he was working. Eileen thought Pat must be very industrious to work on a holiday, and she was glad and proud of him.

When the ship came up to the dock Eileen saw a man on it looking as if he might be Fogarty, and he was.

"Pat told me," he said, "to take ye where he's workin', and I will." He led Eileen to a street where great crowds were waiting for something to happen. Then came a band of music and men with sashes and scarfs on caracoling horses. Among these men in a black clawhammer coat and silk hat she saw her Pat.

Pat caught sight of her and, dismounting, joined her.

"Is this the way ye're workin'?" she asked, astonished.

"Take her to the shanty," said Pat to Fogarty, "and O'll be there directly."

Fogarty led the girl to a five story tenement house, where on the third floor she was ushered into a nicely furnished apartment.

"La sakes!" she exclaimed. "Did Pat earn the money for this ridin' on a horse wid a piece o' stove pipe on his head and a blue ribbon across him?"

At first his letters began in the usual way with his class:

I take my pen in hand to write you a few lines to say that I'm in good health, thanks be to God, hoping that you are the same at the present time.

Then followed hopes that the crops would be abundant and that different members of the family were well. One poor speller who indited a letter for Pat wrote, "This letter comes hoppin' that you are well as I am, thanks be to God!"

"What's that?" said Eileen. "It comes hoppin'?" Of thacht it come by a ship?"

Pat remained several years in America before he sent for Eileen. When he got a start he wrote, "Darlin', O'm buidin' the shanty." When he made some money he wrote, "O've bought the pig." Then the cow followed, his shanty was ready and Pat was ready to send the passage money that was to bring his sweetheart to him in America.

Before starting Eileen wrote that she wished he could bring the shanty and the pig and the cow

31 DEAD IN TRAIN WRECK

Lehigh Val. Express Rolls Over Bank.

48 PERSONS INJURED

Train Was Late and Running at High Rate of Speed.

CAUSED BY SPREADING RAILS

Most of Those Injured, Doctors Say, Are Likely to Die.

Geneva, N. Y., Aug. 26.—One of the worst wrecks in the history of this section of the state occurred at the village of Manchester, about sixteen miles northwest of this city, when the fast passenger train on the Lehigh Valley railroad, known as train No. 4, eastbound, was derailed about one hundred feet east of the Manchester station, part of it falling into the Canandaigua outlet.

Thirty-one dead bodies have been removed from the wreckage, and it is estimated that forty-eight persons have been seriously injured, twenty-five of whom are believed to be fatally so. It is believed by the searchers that there are still a considerable number of dead buried in the wreckage. Of the dead bodies recovered and identified the majority of the people are from Washington, D. C., and Philadelphia, and various other points in Pennsylvania.

Train Was Behind Time.

This train was considerably behind its schedule, and was running at a high rate of speed when it passed Geneva station. Among the passengers on the train were a large number of G. A. R. veterans and their relatives, who were returning from the national encampment at Rochester to their homes in various points in the east, but as far as could be learned there were but three veterans dead, none of whom have been identified. A number of friends and relatives of the veterans are among the dead and injured.

The cause of the disaster was a broken rail twenty feet before the bridge was reached.

The first car to leave the track was a diner, which was the fourth car in the train from the engine. In leaving the tracks the diner took with it a Pullman, which was just behind it. While the diner remained on the roadbed, the Pullman was hurled down a sixty-foot embankment into the outlet. It was in this car that the greatest loss of life occurred. While other cars in the train did not go down the embankment their momentum carried them into the rear end of the diner, causing a considerable loss of life and serious injuries in this car.

As soon as the wreck occurred the work of rescue began. Relief trains were rushed to the scene of the wreck from Rochester, Canandaigua, Clifton Springs and Geneva with physicians and nurses to aid in caring for the injured. As soon as the injured people could be gotten from the wrecked cars they were loaded onto cots in a special train and hurried to Rochester hospitals.

A hurried count of the injured taken to Rochester places the number of injured at sixty-one men, women and children. It is still believed that there are a considerable number of bodies that have not been removed from the wreckage.

Scene One of Horror.

The scene of the disaster was one of almost indescribable horror. The passengers of the train run about in a state of panic looking for missing friends or relatives who were supposed to have lost their lives in the wreck. Shrieks of the injured for a time filled the air, while a large number of surgeons and physicians from the surrounding towns were busy dressing the injuries. Priests who were on the train immediately went among the injured and dead and administered the last rites of the church to those who were still sufficiently alive to take them. Many are scenes that struck deep in the vitals of even the men familiar with the sight of death.

As one of the priests hurried through the injured people near the wreckage, endeavoring to learn who were and who were not Catholics, in order that he might administer the last rites, he was stopped by a woman. Going over to her he asked whether or not she was a Catholic, but she replied that she was not, and then in a voice filled with tears and racked by agonizing pains she said: "Isn't the Lord the same Lord for all, whether we are Catholics or Protestants? Won't you say a prayer to the good Lord Jesus for me." And the priest knelt beside the woman and offered up a prayer to the Most High. Such scenes as the above were common. When the priests reached the side of an injured man or woman it mattered but little what their religion might be. The black-garbed men knelt in prayer and rendered whatever aid they could.

Although the wreck occurred shortly after noon, the scene is still one of indescribable chaos. The civic officials are overwhelmed with the work, and the work of identifying the dead is slowly going on. A revised list of the dead places it at thirty-eight. Of this number but comparatively few have been identified. The coroners from this section are all at the scene of the catastrophe, and it is probable that an inquest into the cause of the wreck will be started just as soon as the officials can do so. The work of clearing up the demolished cars is now going on. Traffic over the road is at present at a standstill. All of the injured were taken to the Rochester hospitals while the dead were placed in a temporary morgue at Shortsville.

The Dead.

The revised list of the dead is as follows:

- Mrs. Barbara Zoodrick, Philadelphia.
- Mrs. Phillips, Philadelphia.
- Mrs. C. F. Johnson, Oberlin, Ohio.
- A. M. Kuniske, Vineland, Ont.
- Mrs. Mary Smith, Sayre, Pa.
- Mrs. Gerald D. Hinman, Swarthport, Pa.
- Mrs. Timothy Madden, Trenton, N. J.
- Miss Clara Hicks, Newark, N. J.
- Edgar Pangborn, Ellis Island.
- B. N. Belt, Los Angeles, Cal.

The unknown dead furnished up to this time are:

- Unknown man, sixty-five years old, wearing cuff buttons marked P.
- Unknown woman, thirty years old.
- Father, mother and son, aged twelve.
- Unknown woman.
- Another unknown woman wearing ring inscribed G. E. to M. L.
- Unknown woman about thirty years old, wearing ring bearing initials M. E. H.

The Injured.

The injured in the Rochester hospitals are as follows: Mrs. Chatam, serious, residence unknown; Charles H. Sadler, Sharon Hill, Pa., slightly; Lev, and Mrs. J. P. Whipple, slightly and seriously injured, respectively; J. B. Hyde and wife, New York, seriously; Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Waterbury, Toronto, Ont., seriously; Emil Kealer, Lancaster, Pa., slightly; Mrs. P. J. Spindle, Olean, N. Y., seriously; Howard Headley, Philadelphia, slightly; F. A. Draper and daughter, Emmaline, Lancaster, Pa., slightly; Mrs. Agnes Gardner, Atlantic City, slightly; C. E. Johnson, no address, slightly; H. O. Douglas, Newton Square, Pa., painfully; Miss Julia Phillips, Philadelphia, painfully; W. P. Randle, Easton, Pa., badly; Edward A. Keller, Washington, D. C., slightly; John Green, Weiland, Ont., badly; Mrs. D. Randall, Niagara Falls, right leg broken; Miss Kate Boyle, Philadelphia, slightly; Miss A. G. Kratzewski, Buffalo, slightly; Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Walker, Lakewood, Ohio, slightly; Geraldine Tuman, Philadelphia, seriously; Captain Robert Amesbury and wife, Philadelphia, seriously.

The whole disaster happened so quickly that passengers on the cars which stood on the track were stunned. One veteran, Frank J. Finer, of 1612 North street, Philadelphia, who was in charge of U. S. Grant Post, of Philadelphia, retained his presence of mind sufficiently to save the lives of the occupants of the last two cars. As soon as he heard the crash of the first car falling he jumped for the emergency brake and threw it on. The car stopped just as the forward edge reached the embankment. The car was filled with eighty-two members of the U. S. Grant Post.

Mr. Finer then climbed down to the wreck and smashed all the windows he could in the cars and assisted several injured out of the cars. Elizabeth White, of Philadelphia, was one of those in the car which stood on end in the gully. Three people who were near her were killed instantly, but she managed to escape with a few scratches and crawled to safety out of one of the windows.

It was the opinion of the surgeons who took charge of the injured that three-quarters of them would probably die.

Most of Injured May Die.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 26.—At Griffith street, where the injured who were brought to Rochester were unloaded, the scene was terrible. Details of police guarded the street, but the crowds pushed to watch the broken and bleeding people fairly heaped in the cars. Several were so badly injured that it was seen they could not live.

Rev. A. M. O'Neill, Rev. J. J. Ganey and Rev. E. M. Lynch, of the Immaculate Conception church, and the Rev. J. S. Cameron, of St. Mary's church, Rochester, were on hand, and the badly injured of the Roman Catholic church were given the last rites before being placed in the hospital ambulances.

Nagel's Speaking Dates.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel left Washington for his summer home in Massachusetts. The secretary has accepted invitations to speak in Milwaukee on Sept. 2, at the manufacturers' exposition in Louisville, Ky., on Oct. 12, and in Hannibal, Mo., on Nov. 10.

Beats Appendicitis at Ninety-Nine.

Wilkes-Barre, Aug. 26.—Mrs. Elizabeth Hillman, of this city, who was ninety-nine years old last March and was operated on for appendicitis two weeks ago, is announced to have completely recovered from the operation.

Autist Held For Killing.

Norristown, Pa., Aug. 26.—Harvey Charles, who ran down and killed Joseph Peters with his automobile, was held for court by Burgess Tattum on the charge of manslaughter. Peters was employed by the Reading Transit company and was greasing the curve at Powell and Brown streets when Charles knocked him down.

Shot by Shell in Bonfire.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 26.—Arthur L. Wood was passing the city dump when a loaded shell in a pile of burning refuse exploded and birdshot hit him in the right leg. He was taken to the city hospital.

French Humor.

A man who possessed much land and had many young brothers was asked why he did not go out hunting, as his brothers did.

"Well," said he, "it is because it frequently happens that the guns of younger brothers go off accidentally when pointed at the eldest, but it is seldom that the guns of the eldest have in a similar manner toward the younger brothers."—French Joke Book.

FRANCE SENDS FINAL REPLY

Cabinet Approves Proposition to Be Laid Before Germany.

MAY BRING A EUROPEAN WAR

Ambassador Cambon Authorized to Offer Parts of French Congo in Exchange For Recognition by Germany of French Rights in Morocco.

Paris, Aug. 26.—A cabinet council was held here when the course of the French negotiations with Germany over the Moroccan dispute were unanimously approved, as were the instructions to Jules Cambon, the French ambassador to Germany, as drawn up by M. De Selves, minister of foreign affairs, and Ambassador Cambon, after long conferences, in which Premier Caillaux, M. Lebrun, minister of colonies, and M. Cruppi, minister of justice, participated.

The instructions to M. Cambon contain, according to an earlier announcement, the maximum terms which France will offer to Germany in order to reach a settlement.

The council convened under the presidency of the premier and immediately began a consideration of the instructions which had been submitted to President Fallieres at Rambouillet by the premier.

The ministers entered the cabinet room at the ministry of the interior in a spirit of much gravity, for it had been felt throughout the week that the decision of the cabinet would have serious import for France.

The session of the council lasted for two and one-half hours, a portion of the sitting being occupied with other matters relating to finance, the disappearance of Mona Lisa, Leonardo de Vinci's masterpiece, from the Salon Carré of the Louvre, and the abandonment of the autumn manoeuvres in northern France, owing to apoplexy fever among the troops.

The manoeuvres, it is possible, will be held in another part of the country.

The cabinet adjourned to meet on Aug. 31 at Rambouillet under the presidency of President Fallieres.

Although the instructions cannot be regarded as suggesting an ultimatum, yet an important step has been taken toward a rupture or an accord depending upon how the German government receives the proposals.

The instructions endeavor to phrase the French conception of Germany's position in Morocco and authorize Ambassador Cambon to offer specific parts of French Congo in exchange for the absolute recognition by Germany of French rights in Morocco.

It may take a long time for either side to say the last word in negotiations such as these, but should they be interrupted after Ambassador Cambon reopens the discussion in writing with Herr Von Kiderlen-Wechter, the German minister of foreign affairs, a new international conference might follow, or a long period of strain and suspense in which neither power did anything except glare at each other.

Both France and Germany are carrying on war preparations, and each power appears willing that the other should know it. Doubtless as a diplomatic manoeuvre there is a little rattling of the sabre to show mutual earnestness.

Nevertheless, in a time of tension such as this war must be among the contingencies considered by statesmanship. The word "war" is used more frequently this week in the conversation of serious Frenchmen than it had been used in any previous period since 1906.

Generally it is used interrogatively in the sense that "Can it be possible that we must fight?" and "Is Germany pushing us into war?"

NEW G. A. R. HEAD

Judge Harvey M. Trimble Commander-in-Chief.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Judge Harvey M. Trimble was unanimously elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, McElroy withdrawing and his name not being presented.

Burns to Death Under Auto.

Pittsburg, Aug. 26.—William L. Barron, a commission merchant, was killed, and Harry Clark was seriously injured when an automobile in which they were riding went over an embankment near Glenfield. Both were pinned under the car, but Clark succeeded in freeing himself. Before he could summon help the gasoline tank exploded, and Barron was burned to death.

Autoist Held For Killing.

Norristown, Pa., Aug. 26.—Harvey Charles, who ran down and killed Joseph Peters with his automobile, was held for court by Burgess Tattum on the charge of manslaughter. Peters was employed by the Reading Transit company and was greasing the curve at Powell and Brown streets when Charles knocked him down.

Shot by Shell in Bonfire.

Princes at School.

Dr. Marks tells some amusing stories of the early days of the school in Burma of which he was for so many years the head. Shortly after the school was opened King Thelaw said, "Will you teach some of my sons?" "Certainly," said Dr. Marks. "What ages do you like them at?" Dr. Marks replied, "From twelve to fourteen." The king said, "Bring all my sons between twelve and fourteen to me." Nine princes came in. Four came to school the next day, each riding on an elephant and with two gold umbrellas. Each also was escorted by forty soldiers. Afterward the whole nine came, so there were nine princes, nine elephants, eighteen gold umbrellas and 360 soldiers. The elephants stayed outside, but when the princes came into the schoolroom all the other boys threw themselves flat down on their faces on the ground. It was forbidden for any one to stand or sit in the presence of princes. Dr. Marks found this state of things very inconvenient, and the royal etiquette at school was at his request considerably abated.—London Globe.

The Old Man Reformed.

"I've a sight o' sons—thirteen altogether," remarked a prosperous old farmer, "and all of 'em's done me credit save the three eldest, who sowed wild oats at a pretty rapid rate and then came home and saddled my shoulders with the harvest."

"Well, I own I was glad to see 'em back, and I feasted 'em and petted 'em and set 'em on their legs again, only to see 'em skeddaddle off afresh when things had slowed down with all the cash they could lay hands on."

"That thereabouts sickened me, so I called the rest of 'em together and said:

A Wise Provision.

Did you ever notice when a man smites his thumb with a hammer while putting down a carpet under his wife's supervision how quickly he thrusts the bruised and throbbing member into his mouth? People think it is because the application is soothing. But the movement is purely involuntary, like winking. The man cannot help it. The fact is that nature knows what a man is apt to say under such circumstances and so has provided him with an automatic stopper. Whenever he hits his thumb hard enough to hurt—and it doesn't take a very hard blow almost to kill a man when he is doing something he doesn't like to do—by a sort of interlocking system his thumb flies into his mouth, and for the critical moment speech is cut off.

Big Poker Stakes.

Many stories of big poker games among the western cattlemen in the early days have been told, but this story of the game with probably the greatest stakes is really true. Two well known cattlemen of southwestern Kansas, one of whom is now a prominent business man in Kansas City, started to move their herds to the pastures of Wyoming. Each herd contained more than a thousand head of cattle. When they came to the crossing of the Arkansas river near Coolidge they found a flood on. They were unable to cross for two or three days. To while away the time the two men engaged in a poker game. When the flood finally subsided so that the cattle could proceed one of the cattlemen said to his son, who was helping to drive, "Just turn my herd over to our neighbor and we will go back home." He had bet and lost not only all the money he had, but all of the herd of cattle.—Kansas City Journal

Moving Troops by Rail.

"Let us suppose it became necessary to send the entire national guard of New York out of the state, how long would it take the railroads to handle them?" was asked a railroad official in New York.

"Twenty-four hours, easy," was the instant reply. "This is under war conditions, remember, which means that everything gives way to the movement of troops and their equipment. The railroads of America can handle men and war material of all kinds, including everything from horses and men to cannon and rations, much faster than they can be assembled and delivered to us. In fact, under war conditions the railroads are prepared to do their part quicker and better, with more certainty and better speed, than any other part of the machinery, commercial or military, in America."—Railroad Man's Magazine.

Black Fridays.

In England the term Black Friday was first applied to Dec. 6, 1745, the day on which news reached London that the pretender, Charles Edward, had reached Derby. Again on May 11, 1869, when the failure of a large English discounting institution brought on a most disastrous panic, the day was called Black Friday. On the day of the suspension of the Bank of England raised the rate of discount 9 per cent. Wild speculation in gold in New York and other cities culminated in a monetary crash on Sept. 16, 1875, that swept thousands of firms and individuals into financial ruin and caused a commercial depression that extended into the eighties of the last century; hence the origin of the term Black Friday in the United States.

A Montana ranchman who was "baching it" mistook white arsenic for baking powder in preparing a batch of biscuits, ate of it and died. The incident points to the wisdom of plainly labeling cans containing powders and other substances used in cooking and of bachelors making early negotiations for competent and permanent housekeepers.

Figures for the first three months of the present year on certificates of pure breeding required by customs officials for the free entry into the country of animals intended for breeding purposes show that 710 horses were imported into the United States. Of this number 337 were Percheron, 252 Belgian draft, 65 Shire, 20 Shetland, 15 Cleveland, 13 Welsh ponies, 6 Hackney and 1 thoroughbred (trouters).

Farm and Garden

FARM FAIRS USEFUL.

They Not Only Educate, but They Make Money For the Holders.

That the farm fair is well worth while has been demonstrated in dollars and cents by the department of agriculture. Its report shows that there are in the United States 1,203 county fair associations, with a paid up membership of 95,321, and that the total receipts in 1910 of the various exhibitions were $2,525,750.

The agricultural college and the farmers' institute have been benefited very greatly. The fair gives these institutes and their workers an opportunity to meet farmers personally. It gives an opportunity to secure cooperation in demonstration work, makes it possible to get in touch with farmers and conduct agricultural schools and short courses, not only while the exposition is on, but also in different parts of the country later. It makes it possible to collect in one place the results of field demonstrations all over the state and enables college and station men to secure names and addresses of representative farmers with whom to correspond in disseminating agricultural information.

At certain periods each day demonstrations are given at different parts of the grounds. These demonstrations include packing of fruit, manipulation of the Babcock test, spraying operations, including the mixing of sprays, as well as their application; killing, dressing and packing of poultry for market; sanitary handling of milk; transplanting, budding and pruning of trees; seed selection, cheese and butter making, testing agricultural machinery, cooking, plowing matches, etc.

In exhibiting animals hay and bedding should be provided free if possible, and grain should be sold at a very moderate rate to exhibitors. This matter of feed at fairs has caused a lot of trouble. Grafting very frequently creeps in, leading to intense dissatisfaction and often to unpleasant experiences.

The judging must be done, so far as possible, by wholly disinterested experts. The judge ought to be ready to explain any finding if he is asked to do so. There are plenty of expert judges available in all lines now, as there is no reason why the best of judges should not be secured.

The matter of concessions and amusements has caused more controversy and discussion than any other thing in connection with the state or county fair. Trials of speed, acrobatic and sleight of hand performances, exhibitions of trained animals, moving pictures, military drills, games of ball, foot races and other similar entertainments, are all unobjectionable when properly controlled and provide entertainment for those who come to spend an idle hour.

But they should be very carefully supervised and not be permitted to interfere with the main exhibits and more educational features of the fair. All entertainments should be restricted to certain hours, when it would be possible for all who desire to witness and enjoy them.

It is suggested that all county fairs shall be supervised by the secretary of the state board of agriculture or some one from the department of agriculture. A general meeting of representatives of all the fair associations should be held each year for conference and discussion of important topics.

Value of White Oak.

White oak is now so scarce that the so called white oak timber of our markets is often a mixture of various species, including red oak. It is almost impossible to get an unmixed consignment of white oak.

Early Railroad Fliers.

When the first passenger railroad ever built was opened in England in 1825 the train traveled from one end of the line to the other, a distance of twelve miles, in two hours. And Wood, one of the best known writers on the subject of railroads at that day, wrote as follows: "Nothing can do more harm to the adoption of railways than the promulgation of such nonsense as that we shall see locomotives traveling at the rate of twelve miles an hour." Today, with locomotives traveling at

THE MOLT.

If robins and wrens lost all their feathers at once, wouldn't pussy get lots of bird breakfasts?

But who has seen Mrs. Robin in the nude like some old rude mammy hens, who seem to have no respect for the conventionals? Take those pullets. Perhaps you are surprised to know that pullets molt four times before laying, their new feathers follow the old so quickly as to escape notice and, if their first egg is not laid before Sept. 1, they do not normally molt again for a year.

Hens should molt birdlike, but old fannies disrobe quick, weak hens slow.

POLLY WANTS A DRESS.

and both, like human hens, take a long time to dress. Look at Polly. He's too cheery.

Like Biddies with fat bustles, he has had too much carbohydrates and little protein, and so has no nitrogen to make feathers. He needs less seed and more boiled meat in his system.

When normal hens molt in warm weather, yearlings finishing in about eight-five days, two and three year old hens molting in 100 to 105 days. Heavy laying isn't natural; it's against fertility and throws a hen off her molt, so that heaviest layers generally molt last, though quickest, and thus early winter eggs are lost. It is wise to discourage heavy laying toward end of cheap egg season, to turn hens on the green, to let them loaf in shade and to remove those Biddy bustles with antifat.

Hens thus become normal for the ordeal, and with a ration rich in protein for nitrogen for feathers and some oil to furnish heat for their bodies they molt naturally and for future profit.

Meat, oilmeal, gluten, sunflower seed, clover, alfalfa, the grains and byproducts, make up the rational ration for molt, and it should be remembered what hens lose before and at time of molt they must gain before laying again.

DON'TS.

Don't feed egg force to pullets and molting hens.

Don't forget that filth is the red mites' incubator.

Don't let to cure and store clover, the great egg maker.

Don't bury dead fowls in the hen yard. Use them for grapevine fertilizer.

Don't feed much new wheat at a meal. It affects hens as new hay does the horse.

Don't advertise a colossal business with only a back lot coop full of culls to back it.

Don't let droppings accumulate under roosts in summer with the idea that because they dry up they are not injurious.

Don't ridicule bald heads. Remember that when children to Eliza said, "Go up, go up, thou old bald head!" the bears came roaring from the wood and used those kids for breakfast food.
